Story. Mister Faithful comes to see Mister Fruitful whose churches have multiplied to several generations.

Faithful: I have heard about the way in which your churches have been multiplying. I would like to ask your advice on how I could help my churches multiply.

Fruitful. Faithful, you are a good preacher and a gifted teacher. If you would follow the principles and practices that my coach has taught me, then your churches could multiply, too.

Faithful: That is what I want more than anything else. So, what are those principles and practices?

Fruitful: Well, for one thing, we follow the principle of reproducibility. That is, we only employ methods that our labourers can imitate in their work. For example, we teach every labourer how to lead discovery bible studies, which anybody can learn to do in only a few minutes. They do not have to become skilled, knowledgeable bible teachers.

Faithful: I think I know what you mean. I preach well, but none of my labourers is able to do so. They try, but others will not listen to them.

Fruitful: My coach has also taught me to coach my labourers, helping them both to learn doctrine and to implement easy plans in their work.

Faithful: I am a bible school graduate and expect my labourers to get as much education as they can. How is that different from coaching?

Fruitful. In a school, one learns many things that they apply in the far future. Through coaching, each one learn what he needs right now, so he can apply it immediately in the cells and churches that he starts or leads.

Reflect. In what ways do Mister Fruitful's training principles and coaching practices sound like Jesus' and his apostles' methods?

Discover. Read the key scriptures, and reply to this query: In what ways is Jesus' promise to Peter being fulfilled? Write your answers here:

Reflect. Train and Multiply® consists of sixty-two pastoral training booklets, but it is much more than materials. In fact, T&M teaches many principles and practices that can help multiply believer, disciples, churches and labourers, even without the materials.

These 12 modules will help you understand the T&M practices and principles that help churches multiply through the coaching of new leaders.
